

February 14, 2026: On the Truth is that Donald Should Hate Me

The truth is that I am personally responsible for the plunge of Donald's popularity all across the world.

He knows it. I know it. We all know it.

When I supported Donald's efforts, his popularity rose and rose and rose to its peak.

And the moment that I began separating from him for failing to abide by the advice that I provided to him - privately - he immediately began seeing the support of his team completely abandon him.

Donald knows damn well that I am the one that made him and broke him.

That is why Donald hates me - and he damn well should.

I made you Donald Trump. And now - I made you fail.

Go on now. Retaliate against me because you don't have the sense enough to know how to gain the people's support or how to stop them from leaving you either.

You are the buffoon and I am the reason that you are failing - you stupid threat to our home and community.

Isn't that right, Donald? You're big mad because you failed to heed my wonderful advice?

Fuck you, you stupid spying clown!